WUNDERBAR
GUIDE
GERMANY AT SXSW 2019
MARCH 8-17
AUSTIN, TEXAS
Welcome to WUNDERBAR, where phenomenal live music, digital know-how, creativity and scientific expertise come together to inspire, spark passion and form new interdisciplinary business relationships. Over the past ten years, the joint German appearance – with 1,300 professionals from Germany last year – has grown to be the second largest international delegation at SXSW. In 2019, the central hub for our cross-sector activities will, once again, be the German Pavilion, the joint German trade show booth at the SXSW Trade Show and the GERMAN HAUS with ten thousand guests from around the world visiting every year.

The German HAUS, just a five-minute walk away from the Austin Convention Center, is offering a very exciting look at the future of German startups and creative, interactive and corporate themes at its new location in the heart of Austin. The wide variety of topics addressed will include areas such as Mobility, New Industries, Immersive Media, Creative Technologies and the Ethics of Technology and we will discuss innovative approaches, specific tools, trends and tricks of the trade with invaluable catalyst. There will be a plethora of carefully curated interdisciplinary presentations, pitches, keynotes and roundtables with renowned visionaries, politicians and experts.

This year, we are thrilled to showcase live performances by more than twenty remarkably talented emerging artists. Delegates are invited to meet for a casual barbecue at Seven Grand on the WUNDERBAR Music Day which will feature the kaleidoscopic variety of the German music scene. One highlight at this event will be a performance by the female indie rock duo Gurr, who won the prestigious IMPALA award for “2018 European Album of the Year”. Another shining star in the official music program is songwriter Alice Phoebe Lou, whose song "She" was shortlisted for an Academy Award for Best Original Song last year. And not to forget Munich’s Jazzrausch Bigband – the peerless ensemble offers a musical fusion where the creativity and sonic variety of a jazz big band meet the impactful clarity of electronic club music. Come and enjoy surprising aural delights that will get you grooving! Come experience the amazing diversity of the German music scene.

I wish you a very inspiring and successful SXSW 2019!
SXSW is not your average trade show. With over 250 exhibitors – from visionary start-ups to established industry leaders – the trade show offers endless discovery opportunities. It will also be home to the German Pavilion from March 10 to 13, 2019. Organized by Koelnmesse, the joint German presentation will – once again – give a wide range of companies the opportunity to exhibit their current projects and to meet up with potential business partners. Furthermore, a carefully curated program of daily presentations by artists, creatives, and entrepreneurs will be offered at the German Pavilion.

GERMAN HAUS
GET TOGETHER

The German Haus is the main venue of the joint German presentation at SXSW and will host a myriad of carefully curated networking events, start-up formats, presentations, roundtables, as well as interdisciplinary performances and concerts from Saturday, March 9 until Thursday, March 14, 2019.

The new German Haus location in the heart of downtown Austin offers even more opportunities for professional exchange, international networking and the exploration of new creative collaborations. Topics addressed range across a multitude of different industries with a specific focus on new and emerging technologies, innovative approaches and potentially disruptive business models. In addition to open and curated formats, the German Haus will also feature a number of invitation-only work and think tanks, and expert level roundtables.

The German Haus is open to all SXSW delegates though capacity restrictions may apply. Make sure to check out the full program and opportunities to actively engage in closed formats and networking events on www.german-haus.com/program

STATE OF MIND – START-UP GERMANY
Authors: KERSTIN BOCK (Co-Founder & CEO, Openers) & SABINE PETZSCH (Content Manager, Openers)

It’s been a good year for European start-ups – the venture capital firm Atomico’s State of European Tech report revealed that European tech is now growing five times faster than the rest of Europe’s economy and that total investment into tech has hit $23bn. Which piece of the pie does the German ecosystem occupy? The news continues to be good, with just over $4bn being invested in German tech and 15 IPOs in the past year.

This leads to an increasing amount of people being employed in the tech sector: for example, 2018 saw a 4% year on year growth in the tech workforce. But the start-up scene is more than just cool cafés in Kreuzberg and playing beer pong in Berlin: Germany has a great advantage in having more professional developers (851,000) than anywhere else in Europe and pushing for increasing digitalisation in almost all sectors. And these talents aren’t just flocking to the capital but choosing to settle in different cities across the country, creating a network of talent and knowledge exchanges. Additionally, Brexit looms large over the tech trends of 2019: Germany benefits from the uncertainty in the UK, as many talents are now heading to the continent and choosing cities in Germany to migrate to.

In 2019, the birthplace of the automobile is further making moves and increasingly investing into mobility: Even archrivals BMW and Daimler are putting aside their differences to beat the onslaught from ridesharing services such as Uber and collaborating on becoming a single source for sustainable urban mobility services. At the German Haus, we will invite experts from all aspects of mobility to debate the roads that future mobility is taking. This includes the role of autonomy and tech in the creation of new vehicles, developments in electric vehicles and alternative powertrains, the battle between rural and urban options, and the role of cities and communes in championing safer, cleaner and more affordable solutions.

The conversation of mobility extends to old industries such as travel and insurance being upended by young upstarts, as well as new industries (think anything from medical marihuana over digital therapeutics to industry 4.0, sector coupling or cobots) making their mark and convincing investors in 2019.

In the dialog on how Germany and the tech sector are structuring their future plans, one facet has become central to the discussion: ethics. With the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) having been implemented and companies scrambling to stay on the right side of the law, questions have arisen about how individual consumers are protected, and how access to data leaves many vulnerable. The news is full of data breaches such as Collection #1, a breach detected by security researcher Troy Hunt earlier this year.

Going beyond the access to individual passwords and usernames, the tech scene also has to ask bigger questions and actually provide workable solutions when it comes to the ethics of its creations: What are the risks of autonomous vehicles? How do we protect the “human element” when all around us digitalisation is leading to accelerated development? And how do we keep providing jobs that have dignity when we are looking at a future when many jobs, blue-collar and white-collar will go to robots and AI?

At SXSW 2019, the German Haus aims to tackle these questions and gather a variety of opinions and solutions from experts in different sectors. It is a space that enables visibility, networking, and learning, whilst also facilitating new connections and opportunities for growth.
NEW MOBILITY
Author: LUKAS KÄSTNER, Head of Marketing, Hamburg Aviation & ZAL Center of Applied Aeronautical Research

With smartphones moving into everyone’s lives and pockets, the past decade was all about the mobile revolution. Will the next 10 years give us the mobility revolution?

The most visible revolution will take place in the sky: Urban Air Mobility is gaining huge traction these days with aerospace giants, tech corporates and start-ups spreading their wings in this new segment. Germany is one of the front runners in the UAM industry with globally renowned start-ups Volocopter and Lilium, as well as the CityAirbus, positioned in the evolving urban air taxi market. Unmanned drones from German companies such as Wingcopter could also bypass traffic jams in the future, providing urgent deliveries like medication and lab samples via the sky. How to securely add a new layer of air traffic to a densely-populated area like Germany is the focus of several research projects, like Windrove in Hamburg - and will also be prominently discussed in this year’s SXSW Conference program.

Among many other things, Germany is famous for its cars but the question is for how long will there still be a traditional automotive industry? Mirroring changing lifestyles, “car country” has already started to blend into a more complex mobility industry. One is the advent of the sharing economy to automotive: Car2Go, DriveNow, and most recently urban minibus project such as Moia and ViaVan are prime examples, all featuring prominent launch partners from the German car industry. New technologies are another major driver to innovation, whether it is the transition from fossil fuels to electric or fuel cell powered cars, or autonomous driving – which will probably hit the streets earlier than we think, though rather in the shape of long-distance trucking instead of private cars. Urban life and how we get around are changing as well: Some are new, like e-scooters, some well-known, like bicycles: In modern urban planning, bike lanes and bike sharing systems are becoming an ever-more important aspect.

Lastly, the next mobility revolution will not be about a certain technology but about interconnectivity. One long-term goal should be to make no European journey longer than 4 hours door-to-door. This implies the smart linkage of transportation methods from bikes all the way to planes, and the use of artificial intelligence to calculate the fastest combination of options in real time. Not only German companies like Moovel are already doing this today: If you’re wondering when AI in mobility will become a part of your own life, just grab your phone and do a route calculation in Google Maps.
The future of work does not exist. In truth, there are many different possible futures. Among them are desirable visions: Will smart machines free us from annoying and inhumane routine work in the future? Will we learn new skills and invent new jobs? And will we distribute the productivity gains achieved through automation wisely, so that all members of society — not just a few — can benefit from it?

But it can also turn out quite differently. The dystopian view on the future of work shaped by technologically induced unemployment, in which prosperity is spread among even fewer people — with all the drastic social and political consequences implied — is just as vividly imaginable. And in between there is a multitude of other possible futures in which we could steer over the course of the next years and decades.

The most important thing is that the future in which we find ourselves will be the result of numerous complex political, social and economic decisions. This means that as citizens, as voters, as customers, as employees and managers in companies, we have the opportunity to have a say in the course of things.

But to do that, we need to address the issues at hand now. This requires a deeper understanding of new technologies and their possible consequences, honest discourses on the question of how we want to live and work in the future and spaces, both digital and physical, to enable the exchange of ideas and an open discourse.

The Future of Work track at the German Haus will offer exactly such space for collaborative thinking: Together with exciting experts and thought leaders, we will illuminate future scenarios of work through a variety of interactive formats and networking opportunities and show that our collective future is, in fact, shapeable.
HUMAN-CENTERED TECHNOLOGY

Technologies such as robotics and artificial intelligence have come a long way. They have the potential to solve major challenges in various areas of application and they entail many opportunities for humanity: From improving detection and treatment of diseases to enabling greater autonomy for the elderly, from optimizing energy consumption to granting us more time and space for creativity. However, these opportunities come with complex challenges that need to be identified and addressed. Robotics and AI will not only lead to new demands in the working world, but are also raising societal, ethical and psychological issues that have to be solved by policy makers all around the globe.

Therefore, now is the time to start the discussion about the framework conditions of a world we want to live in the future. We need to shape a human-centered tomorrow, in which artificial intelligence and natural intelligence are not played off against one another, but are rather seen as complementary; a tomorrow in which fundamental rights, human needs and values such as fairness, inclusion, transparency and non-discrimination are promoted by design.

Trans-disciplinarity is a key factor in this discussion. Experts from diverse backgrounds and stakeholders from various areas of society – including the cultural and creative sectors that are so impressively represented at SXSW – have to be brought together to create forward-looking guidelines for the development of responsible technology. This year at the German Haus, we will deal in depth with the ethical and social challenges of robotics and AI. We will review current international policy-making initiatives and ask what it takes to implement a more proactive and participatory approach to the development of technology that considers ethical and social issues already in the very early stages of innovation.

The German performance artist Joseph Beuys once said “The future we want, needs to be invented; otherwise we will get one, we don’t want.”

“The future we want, needs to be invented; otherwise we will get one, we don’t want.”

CREATIVE TECHNOLOGY

EMERGING TECHNOLOGIES AS A MEDIUM FOR ARTISTIC EXPRESSION AND CREATIVE ENTREPRENEURS

Author: MATTHIAS STROBEL, co-founder and President of the Federal Association for Music Technology in Germany (MusicTech Germany) and co-founder of WickedWork, a creative tech catalyst based in Berlin.

Creative Technologies play a key role in bridging the (traditional) creative industries and the digital sector and have enabled a multitude of vertical industries to execute smart, strategic, and successful visions for new markets. As an emerging branch of the creative industries, creative technology has grown exponentially fast and has proven to be at the forefront of innovation, fostering new business models and enabling a new type of creative entrepreneurial spirit.

Creative tech innovators have a unique understanding of how to execute opportunities that come with access to new and emerging technologies: Start-ups create fascinating products. Brands are enabled to engage and re-engage their customers and clients in truly unique ways. Content creators and artists build interactive and immersive experiences for audiences and encourage new and meaningful approaches to media, art, music, fashion, or film through mediums and technologies like artificial intelligence, digital art, mixed realities, 3D-printed architecture, LED fabric, algorithmic visuals, coded music or music created with custom electronics.

During a two-day focus on Creative Technology at the German Haus, we will present a thoughtfully curated program showcasing emerging technologies as they are applied to creative entrepreneurial pursuits and artistic explorations.

MusicTech Germany and the creative tech catalyst WickedWork invite you to dive into the endless possibilities of creative technology, find inspiration and explore the outstanding works from visionary innovators and artists from Germany at the German Haus on 410 East 6th Street on Tuesday, March 12 and Thursday, March 14, 2019.

FOCUS DAYS AT THE GERMAN HAUS
TUESDAY, MARCH 12 AND THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 2019
CURATED BY MUSICTECH GERMANY & WICKEDWORK
KINDLY SUPPORTED BY FUNDS FROM THE CULTURAL AND CREATIVE INDUSTRIES INITIATIVE OF THE FEDERAL GERMAN MINISTRY OF ECONOMIC AFFAIRS AND ENERGY AND INITIATIVE MUSIK

TUESDAY, MARCH 12 & THURSDAY, MARCH 14
GERMAN HAUS AT GRAEBER HOUSE | 410 EAST 6TH STREET
When you think of Germany, what’s the music you think of? Is there a true “German sound”? The artists that will probably come to mind are household names like Kraftwerk, Scorpions, Nena, Einstürzende Neubauten or Rammstein. Despite having very different musical styles, they all have something in common: they have excelled in their artistic careers, pushed the limits of creativity and opened up paths to new generations of musicians, who continue exploring new ways of creating innovative sounds – in Germany as well as internationally.

Therefore, rather than limit ourselves to “a German sound”, WUNDERBAR focuses on the wide diversity of artists from Germany. This variety forms a current-day musical kaleidoscope that is supported and nurtured by a dense network of clubs, musical venues and festivals in the country. Add a myriad of music lovers to the equation, who are continuously hungry for music – both recorded and live – and it is obvious why Germany is the third-largest music market worldwide. The vast German musical landscape ranges from jazz (with events like the German Jazz Festival in Frankfurt, celebrating its 50th anniversary this year), to electronic music (including the CTM Festival in Berlin, which just had its 20th anniversary), to rock, pop and everything in between: heavy-metal fans have kept coming to Wacken Open Air for thirty years, and German cities such as Berlin, Hamburg, Munich, Cologne and Mannheim all have dynamic music scenes of their own, keeping the flame alive.

So, come join us at the German Haus during SXSW 2019 to discover a slew of exciting new artists. Enjoy the solid garage rock of bands like Leoniden or indie rock duo Gurr (2018 IMPALA winner). Discover amazing singer-songwriters like Alice Phoebe Lou (shortlisted in 2018 for an Academy Award for her song “She”), Laura Carbone, Suzan Köcher, Emma Elisabeth and Josin. Meet shooting star Sofia Portanet, electronic music legend Gudrun Gut, and dance to the beats of Sonic Robots artist Moritz Simon Geist or the unique sound of Komfortrauschen playing analog techno with drums and guitar. Don’t miss Daniel Brandt, Robot Koch & Delhia de France, Wolf & Moon, Ori and DSTR and the incredible Jazzrausch Bigband, the first jazz big band to be resident at a techno club in Munich. Hip-hop, R&B or rap are more your style, check out Gaddafi Gals, Ace-Tee & Kwam.E, and Catnapp. And last but not least: Be inspired by live-coded music performances by Alexandra Cárdenas and Byrke Lou and their presentations on their work process at the SXSW Conference.

Plenty of music and more from Germany to be discovered at the German Haus – don’t miss out.

CULTURAL AND CREATIVE INDUSTRIES

The cultural and creative industries are the embodiment of diversity; they encompass a broad spectrum of market segments, including architecture, books, design, film, art, the performing arts, music, press, broadcasting, software, games, and advertising.

The cultural and creative industries are of major significance to our economy, the gross output totaling 102.7 billion euros in 2017. The sector's work force is characterized by a large number of self-employed creative entrepreneurs, with roughly 254,700 freelancers and commercial companies providing around 1 million jobs. The cultural and creative industries are also drivers of innovation for many other branches and particularly for small and medium-sized companies.

One of the Initiative's central goals is to raise public awareness for the importance of the sector and to improve the future prospects of the cultural and creative industries by strengthening their competitive ability and tapping into their full potential for creating jobs.

INITIATIVE MUSIK

SUPPORT FOR MUSICIANS AND MUSIC COMPANIES FROM GERMANY

Initiative Musik is the German Music Export Office, supporting rock, pop, and jazz music from Germany. Its main goals include the promotion of young musical talent, the integration of musicians with immigrant backgrounds, and the dissemination of German music to foreign markets. Another focus is bolstering music venues that significantly contribute to maintaining cultural diversity in Germany. Initiative Musik represents Germany in international networks such as the European Talent Exchange Programme (ETEP) and the European Music Exporters Exchange (EMEE). Furthermore, Initiative Musik cooperates with other European music export offices and initiates original projects focused on the export of music and the promotion of up-and-coming artists under the WUNDERBAR brand. The support fosters, both, the cultural and economic development of artists, bands, and music projects. Initiative Musik’s Artist and Tour Grants are intended for solo artists and bands, especially newcomers, living in Germany and seek to further help musicians to gain foothold in foreign markets. Criteria for support are primarily the artists’ originality and musical language, but also the music’s commercial potential.

Initiative Musik is supported by the German Society for the Administration of Neighboring Rights (GVL), the German Music Authors’ Society (GEMA), and the German Music Council (Deutscher Musikrat). The bulk of the project’s funding is provided by the German Federal Commissioner for Culture and the Media. This is reflected in the structure of Initiative Musik’s partners and the representation on its supervisory board, which is made up of representatives from the music industry and the federal government.

WUNDERBAR – GERMANY AT SXSW 2019

Since 2010, the coordination of the WUNDERBAR – GERMANY AT SXSW is Initiative Musik’s largest project supporting music export, organized on behalf of the Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Energy and the Ministry’s Cultural and Creative Industries Initiative. In addition, the joint German presentation is part of the Foreign Trade Show Program of the federal government and is realized and financed with partners from several federal states.

The central hubs of Germany’s activities at SXSW are the German Pavilion at the trade show and the German Haus, where company presentations, networking events, and showcases take place. Newcomer bands are presented with an extraordinary opportunity to build international business relations, especially in the American music market through the participation in the SXSW Music Showcase Festival and Music Conference.

In addition, the joint German presentation is part of the Foreign Trade Show Program of the federal government and is realized and financed with partners from several federal states.

The central hubs of Germany’s activities at SXSW are the German Pavilion at the trade show and the German Haus, where company presentations, networking events, and showcases take place. Newcomer bands are presented with an extraordinary opportunity to build international business relations, especially in the American music market through the participation in the SXSW Music Showcase Festival and Music Conference.

EUROPE’S CREATIVE HEART

Significant growth in the culture and creative industries has propelled the Munich Metropolitan Region into the top league regarding the turnover and numbers of employees in this sector. Munich now stands at eye-level with Amsterdam. To further support the culture and creative scene, and to realize its potential, the City of Munich has set up the Team of Excellence for the Culture and Creative Industries.

TEAM OF EXCELLENCE FOR THE CULTURE AND CREATIVE INDUSTRIES OF THE CITY OF MUNICH

The Team of Excellence for the Culture and Creative Industries is a service provided by the City of Munich to support the culture and creative industries in the Munich Metropolitan Region. It offers free advice to individuals and companies working in every segment of these multi-faceted industries, supports their image building and networking efforts, and helps them find suitable office space and premises. The aim is to promote the culture and creative industries, encourage the sharing of experience, and realize valuable synergies. The team also gives this highly diverse sector a forum in which to voice its needs and the opportunity to build bridges and contacts.

Furthermore, the Team of Excellence seeks to increase widespread awareness of and appreciation for the innovative force of the culture and creative industries among the traditional industries and the general public.

To enable Bavaria-based creative companies to enter the international market, the Team of Excellence awarded tickets for SXSW to five Startups this year: Munich Science & Fiction Festival (muc-sf-festival.com), Plantura (plantura.garden), Uber Eck (ubereck.com), Varia Media (varia.media.de) and Viond (viond.io).

The Department of Arts and Culture is responsible for the municipal cultural institutions – museums, theaters, orchestras, and libraries. The promotion of culture in its diversity is the Department’s main funding task. This role is carried out through advisory and consultancy services, through the provision of a cultural infrastructure, support at cultural events as well as financial and material assistance for institutions and projects. The Department also funds awards and recognition for those involved in the creation of culture and the arts.

This year the performance of the Munich based bands Gaddafi Gals and Jazzrausch Bigband at SXSW is kindly supported by Munich’s Department of Arts and Culture.

HAMBURG

FREEPORT OF INNOVATIVE IDEAS

The attention on Hamburg has grown rapidly since the opening of the Elbphilharmonie – one of the finest concert halls in the world. In 2018, the Lonely Planet included Hamburg in its "Top10 cities" to visit. Or the New York Times, which ranked Hamburg within the top ten among its "52 Places to go". This metropolis at the waterfront Hamburg has quite something to offer.

Hamburg is one of the most dynamic economic regions in northern Europe and a hub for creative industries and startups. Germany’s second largest city is its advertising and media capital, the favorite working place for creative minds and home to major industry leaders such as Snap, Twitter, Facebook or Google. As the center of Germany’s music industry, it attracts both artists and music business professionals and hosts the most important music business event in Europe, with around 4,700 professionals from over 50 countries worldwide: the Reeperbahn Festival from September 18–21, 2019.

The legendary clubs on the infamous Reeperbahn have been seen as springboards to fame: the Beatles were not the only ones to have their breakthrough here. Most of the young music scene is based in the districts of Altona and St. Pauli – home to the Reeperbahn. Hamburg’s position as one of the most dynamic economic regions in Europe is rooted in a mix of economic potential and a high standard of living. Many start-ups from Hamburg successfully developed into international companies, including Jimdo, mytaxi, or XING. Start-ups such as About You, one of Germany’s few recent unicorns continue to write this success story.

CREATIVE COMPANIES AT SXSW

Around SXSW there are several events, where we offer various instruments for funding and support and organize matchmaking opportunities including Hamburg’s famous “Reeperbahn Hamburgers” receptions just outside the Austin Convention Center. Please find the latest info on Hamburg’s activities in Austin 2019 on www.hamburg-business.com.

Hamburg is a leading technology center in key areas like materials & processes, mobility, and in cross-sectional fields of digitization. With AIRBUS, Lufthansa Technik and hundreds of SMEs, Hamburg is the third largest spot for civil aviation industries on the globe. The leading ZAL Center of Applied Aeronautical Research, the German Aerospace Center (DLR) and other stakeholders are successfully involved in applying 3D printing and industry 4.0 approaches to aircraft construction. The future of Urban Air mobility will be discussed at the SXSW Panel: "Flying Taxis and Ambulance Drones: SciFi 2 Reality". www.hamburg-aviation.com

JOHANNES EVERKE

In the year 1934, the Austrian economist Joseph Schumpeter was probably the first to argue that the notions of entrepreneurship and innovation are interrelated. Today, the Austrian business landscape is characterized by innovative companies with a truly entrepreneurial spirit.

In 2019 and for the fourth time at SXSW, Austria will showcase a selection of its most innovative and promising start-ups, global leaders, and institutions from areas as diverse as artificial intelligence, the arts, autonomous driving, fintech, govtech, musictech and virtual reality. Inspiring audiences with clever ideas and ingenious technologies, they have contributed to putting Austria on the world map as a cutting-edge and creative country.

Austria’s presence at SXSW is an initiative of ADVANTAGE AUSTRIA – Austria’s official trade promotion organization. With its Vienna headquarters and a global network of 110 offices in over 70 countries, ADVANTAGE AUSTRIA offers a broad range of intelligence and business development services for both Austrian companies and their international business partners. It is the face and voice of Austria’s export business abroad.

We look forward to another chapter of continued success stories, investment opportunities, and flourishing collaborations with our amazing start-up ecosystem.

BADEN-WUERTTEMBERG

BADEN-WUERTTEMBERG INTERNATIONAL (BW-I)

is the center of competence for the internationalization, marketing and development of industry, science and research of the State of Baden-Württemberg in the German southwest. Our main objectives are strengthening contacts between foreign and local companies, universities and research institutions, supporting the endeavors of Baden-Württemberg companies, universities and research institutions to enter foreign markets, and positioning Baden-Württemberg as an excellent location for business and science.

For SXSW bw-i is partnering with MFG Medien- und Filmgesellschaft, the State agency responsible for promoting film culture and industry and the media and creative industry and with the Stuttgart Region Economic Development corporation (WRS), the central contact for investors and companies in the Greater Stuttgart region.

Meet Baden-Württemberg’s startups at SXSW: In 2019 ten delegates from Baden-Württemberg startups will participate in SXSW to find out more about the latest trends and to make new international contacts.
RHINELAND-PALATINATE

FROM RHINELAND-PALATINATE INTO THE WORLD

Being in the heart of Europe, the State of Rhineland-Palatinate has established itself as an internationally successful, future-oriented business location. The state is the home of innovative small- and medium-sized enterprises. Many innovations in sectors like mechanical engineering, the healthcare industry, or the creative industries come from family-owned businesses. Every seventh employee in the state works in a high technology field. Thus, Rhineland-Palatinate is one of the top 20 regions in Europe when it comes to innovation potential. The strong media orientation calls to mind the great heritage of Johannes Gutenberg of Mainz. The mix of tradition and modernity makes our state so unique and successful.

HANOVER

Welcome to the federal state of Lower Saxony and its capital Hanover. We are the home of Volkswagen, the Pied Piper of Hamelin, and many horses (we even put one on our coat of arms). Work hard, play hard – we enrich college parties in the US with our Jägermeister and our capital is proud to be a UNESCO City of Music for contributing to music, culture, industry, and history!

As our city’s representative in all things economic development, hannoverimpuls is here to connect you to a tech-savvy start-up haven and true creative champion.

“Humanity will change more in the next 20 years than the previous 300 years (yes, seriously). It’s time to decide what we want to be.”

Quotation from Technology vs. Humanity by Futurist Gerd Leonhard
From the automobile to X-Ray to MP3, Germany has long been on the forefront of innovation. So what big invention is next?

The German Center for Research and Innovation (DWIH) New York seeks to promote German achievements in scientific research and to advance innovation and technology in the United States. Through public events and communication, by establishing partnerships and attending conferences and fairs, the DWIH New York connects German and American thought leaders to promote collaboration and exchange across disciplines and across the Atlantic.

The DWIH’s focus areas mirror topics predicted to be critical in the future: in Germany, the US and globally. Current topics include artificial intelligence, big data, the future of work, climate and energy, urban planning, biotechnology, precision medicine and other topics.

The DWIH New York is part of a global network of five centers overseen by the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD).

Continue expanding your networks beyond SXSW by connecting with the DWIH New York.

Land of Ideas
MusicTech Germany is the world’s first Federal Association for Music Technology. At the core of its mission: Bridging the gap and promoting collaboration between the traditional music and other creative industries and music tech pioneers.

The association seeks to promote the joint interests of its members and to support innovators in fulfilling their mission by initiating interactive multi-disciplinary events and by communicating with and counseling of inter/national policy makers, industry executives, media representatives, as well as artists, music enthusiasts and the general public.

As an independent organization, MusicTech Germany is the main point of contact for music technology in Germany. It connects the dots for its members who address the challenges of the music industry value chain in the digital age: Ranging from notation and production software to musical instruments and interfaces, from streaming platforms to Blockchain services and Artificial Intelligence applications to new live experiences and ticketing solutions.

Furthermore, the association fosters the knowledge transfer between visionaries from all intersections of the creative industries. It serves as a mediator and independent catalyst to help accelerate avant-garde approaches, determined to further the innovative potential and future success of artists and pioneers by improving the creative environment and underlying economic infrastructure.
